Pinot Noir, Mt. Eden Clone

El Jabali Vineyard ~ Sta. Rita Hills

Here is the Mt. Eden selection of Pinot Noir, planted at Rancho El Jabali around 1984. (The cuttings came from Sanford & Benedict.) These are the heritage vines you drive through when you come to Alma Rosa Winery tasting room and “headquarters” just off of Santa Rosa Road.

Clove-scented, violet rose-petalled, minty herbal dusty cocoa-truffled vanilla-swirl iced raspberry pooled with a cherry drop-dead prettiness, a slow-to-reveal dark side and a surprising killer grip

(arm wrestling with Linda Furst in the 4th grade) - (damn!)
So, with food, you can go subtle, almost delicate to emphasize the wine (filet of sole or trout in a brown butter sauce with fresh herbs); or you can go brash and bold to challenge the wine (hoisin lamb stir fry tacos)... this is my favorite of the '09s...
